

MOW WEEKLY UPDATE!

10/25/2010

Hello MOW folks, it is time for the next installment of the MOW Weekly Update! It has been a busy week so we have lots to discuss.

WEEK IN REVIEW:

Tuesday: We worked in the shop as normal on Tuesday. We did lots of good things with cool tools and a great crew. If you don't believe me, visit MOW on a Tuesday night!

Thursday: We had a large crew working around the shop on Thursday. We spent much of the time getting equipment ready for the Jamestown work weekend and preparing equipment for the weekend rains.

MOW crew works on the Angles Branch switch at Jamestown.

Saturday: The crew worked in Jamestown both Saturday and even in the rain on Sunday. They changed out a headblock on the Angles branch switch, that was destroyed by being run through. They also changed a number of ties both in the switch and along the passing track. While the tie changing was occurring a small team worked on adjustments to several switches. The crew did good work and even continued working through the rain.

WEEK AHEAD:

Tuesday: We will be meeting at the shops at 3:00 p.m. for those with flexible schedules and 5:00 p.m. for those working for a living.

Thursday: We will be meeting at the shops at 5:00 p.m.

Saturday: This is the day of the MOW Picnic. If you have not RSVP'ed then please do by Tuesday so we can have an accurate count. The picnic starts at 11:30 a.m. in Miller Park. With the weather forecast an alternate location may be announced if there is rain. We do have some work to do in the morning with MOW so we will also be meeting at 8:00 a.m. at the shops if you want to get in a little work before the picnic.

See you out on the line,

John, Sandy, and Chris
